

REPUBLIC OF SOUTH AFRICA

EXTRADITION BILL, 2022

(As introduced in the National Assembly (proposed section 75); explanatory summary of Bill published in Government Gazette N. ... of 2022) (The English text is the official text of the Bill)

(MINISTER OF JUSTICE AND CORRECTIONAL SERVICES)

[B - 2022]

BILL

To provide for the extradition of persons accused or convicted of certain offences in the Republic of South Africa and foreign States; to provide for the surrender of persons accused or convicted of certain crimes to international entities; to provide for measures to ensure compliance with the international obligations of the Republic of South Africa in terms of resolutions and other international instruments and agreements; and to provide for matters incidental thereto.

PREAMBLE

RECOGNISING THAT—

- extradition constitutes the basis for fighting criminality in national jurisdictions across the world, especially transnational crimes such as organised crime and corruption, which know no borders;
- international crimes have an adverse effect on socio-economic development;
- the Extradition Act, 1962 (Act No. 67 of 1962) is not in line with modern extradition trends and is not in all respects compatible with the international obligations of the Republic of South Africa relating to extradition and surrender; and
- a constitutional State requires that offenders must be brought to book, irrespective of their whereabouts;

WHEREAS—

- the Republic of South Africa is committed to ensuring that it is not a safe haven for fugitives;
- the Republic of South Africa is committed to bringing persons who commit these crimes to justice and to facilitate and expedite the extradition of fugitives through its court processes; and
- the Republic of South Africa is committed to protecting the safety and security of its people.

Be it therefore enacted by the Parliament of the Republic of South Africa, as follows:—

(2) A person may be extradited from the Republic in accordance with this Act and an extradition agreement, at the request of an extradition partner or an unlisted foreign State, for the purpose of prosecuting the person, imposing a sentence on the person or enforcing a sentence imposed on the person.

(3) In addition to the extradition of a person, property that is required as evidence or was acquired as a result of the commission of the offence in question, may be transferred in accordance with this Act or an extradition agreement, at the request of an extradition partner or an unlisted foreign State.

(4) The Criminal Procedure Act applies with the necessary changes as may be required by the context, except in so far as this Act provides for amended, additional or different provisions or procedures.

CHAPTER 2

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

Extraditable offence

3. (1) A person may be extradited from the Republic on request for the extradition of that person for the purpose of prosecuting the person, imposing a sentence on that person or enforcing a sentence imposed on that person, if the offence in question—

(a) is, in terms of the law of the Republic and the foreign State in question, punishable with a sentence of imprisonment or other form of deprivation of liberty, for a period of twelve months or more, unless the extradition agreement in question provides for a longer period; and

(b) if committed within the jurisdiction of the Republic, constitutes an offence in terms of the domestic law of the Republic.

(2) An offence is an extraditable offence for the purposes of subsection (1), whether or not the laws of the Republic place the acts or omissions constituting the offence within the same category of offence or denominate the offence by the same terminology.

(3) Where the extradition of a person is sought in respect of more than one offence, it is sufficient for the purpose of extraditing that person, if any one offence is an extraditable offence referred to in subsection (1), but a person may not be—

(a) prosecuted;

(b) sentenced; or

(c) forced to serve a sentence, in the requesting State for an offence for which that person would not have been extradited in terms of the Act.

Enforcement of sentence

4. A person whose extradition is requested for the purpose of enforcing a sentence of imprisonment or other form of deprivation of liberty, may only be extradited from the Republic if—

(a) the sentence imposed was in respect of an extraditable offence referred to in section 3; and

(b) the remaining term of the sentence to be served is at least four months, unless the extradition agreement in question provides for a longer period.

Jurisdiction

5. (1) Subject to an extradition agreement, a person may be extradited to a requesting State irrespective of whether—

- (a) the offence in question occurred within the jurisdiction of the requesting State;
- or
- (b) the law of the Republic provides for jurisdiction over the same type of offence when committed outside the territory of the Republic.

(2) Except as otherwise provided for in an Act which deals with specific extraditable offences and subject to any other extradition agreement, where a competent court in the Republic could exercise jurisdiction in respect of an extraditable offence for which the extradition of a person is sought, that person may only be extradited to the requesting State if the Director of Public Prosecutions, in writing, declines to prosecute that person.

Offences excluded

6. (1) A person may not be extradited if the offence for which extradition is requested is an offence under military law which is not also an offence under the ordinary criminal law of both the Republic and the requesting State.

(2) A person may not be extradited if the offence for which extradition is requested is regarded as a political offence or an offence of a political nature.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2), but subject to an extradition agreement—

- (a) murder or attempted murder;
- (b) assault with the intent to cause grievous bodily harm;
- (c) an offence under the Criminal Law (Sexual Offences and Related Matters) Amendment Act, 2007 (Act No. 32 of 2007);
- (d) abduction or kidnapping;
- (e) corruption or extortion; and
- (f) an attempt or conspiracy to engage in, counselling, aiding or abetting another person to engage in, or being an accessory after the fact in relation to, the conduct referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (e), do not constitute a political offence or an offence of a political nature.

(4) Despite subsection (2), a request for extradition based on an offence referred to in section 4 or 5 of the Protection of Constitutional Democracy against Terrorist and Related Activities Act, 2004 (Act No. 33 of 2004), may not be refused on the sole ground that the offence constitutes a political offence, or an offence connected with a political offence or an offence inspired by political motives.

(5) Subsection (4) does not in any way affect the application of sections 7 and 52.

Invalid purpose of request

7. A person may not be extradited if, in the opinion of the Minister, there are substantial grounds for believing that the request for extradition has been made for the purposes of prosecuting, punishing or prejudicing that person on account of that person's race, religion, nationality, ethnic origin, political opinion, sex, status, sexual orientation or gender identity.

Lapse of time, pardon or amnesty

8. A person may not be extradited if that person has, under the law of the requesting State, become immune from prosecution or from the enforcement of a sentence as a result of the lapse of time, pardon or amnesty.

Final acquittal or conviction

9. A person may not be extradited if that person would be entitled, if prosecuted in the Republic, to be discharged because of a previous acquittal or conviction.

No grounds for refusal of extradition to requesting State

10. Despite any other law to the contrary, including customary and conventional international law, the fact that a person, being a member of a security service or armed force, was under a legal obligation to obey an unlawful order of a government or superior, does not constitute a ground for refusing the extradition of that person to a requesting State.

Subsequent request for extradition

11. The discharge of a person in terms of this Act does not preclude proceedings under this Act, based on a subsequent request for extradition of the same person in respect of the same offence, unless there are grounds for believing that such proceedings would constitute an abuse of process.

Rights of arrested person

12. Upon the arrest, with or without a warrant, in terms of this Act, of a person who is not a—

- (a) South African citizen;
- (b) person ordinarily resident in the Republic; or
- (c) citizen of any State, the person who carries out the arrest, must inform the arrested person that he or she is entitled, and must be permitted—

- (i) to communicate without delay with the nearest appropriate representative of—
 - (aa) the State of which the person is a citizen;
 - (bb) if the person is not a citizen of any State, the State in whose territory the person ordinarily resides; or
 - (cc) the State, if any, that is otherwise entitled to protect the person's rights;and
- (ii) to be visited by such a representative.

CHAPTER 3
EXTRADITION AGREEMENT, EXTRADITION PARTNER AND PRESIDENTIAL CONSENT

Extradition agreement

13. (1) The President may, subject to the provisions of the Constitution and this Act—

- (a) on the conditions that the President may deem fit, enter into an agreement with a foreign State, which provides for the extradition, on a reciprocal basis, of persons accused or convicted of the commission of an extraditable offence and may likewise agree to an amendment or revocation of that agreement; and
- (b) designate a foreign State, which is a member of the Commonwealth, for the purposes of extraditing persons accused or convicted of the commission of an extraditable offence and may at any time amend the conditions for, or revoke, that designation.

(2) An extradition agreement or designation or an amendment or revocation of an agreement or designation is of no force or effect—

- (a) before its ratification, accession to, or amendment or revocation, is approved by Parliament in terms of section 231 of the Constitution; and
- (b) unless provision is made by the laws of a foreign State or by the agreement, that a person who is to be extradited to that State will not, until that person has been returned or has had an opportunity of returning to the Republic, be detained or tried in a foreign State—

- (i) for an offence committed prior to that person's extradition, other than the offence in respect of which extradition is sought; or
- (ii) for an offence of which that person may lawfully be convicted in respect of which offence extradition is sought, or that such person will not be so detained or tried without his or her consent or that of the Minister.

(3) Despite subsection (2)(b), an extradition agreement may provide that a person extradited to a foreign State may, with the consent of the Minister and with a view to that person's extradition to another foreign State, be detained in the first-mentioned State for an offence which was committed prior to that person's extradition to such State and to which the extradition agreement relates.

(4) The Minister must, within 60 days after the date of entry into force or revocation of, or amendment to, an extradition agreement or after the designation of a foreign State, give notice thereof in the Gazette.

(5) An arrangement made with a foreign State which, by virtue of the provisions of the Extradition Acts 1870 to 1906 of the Parliament of the United Kingdom as applied in the Republic, was in force in respect of the Republic immediately prior to the date of commencement of this Act, is considered to be an agreement entered into and published on the said date by the President under this section.

Relationship between Act and extradition agreement

14. Where a provision of this Act is inconsistent with a provision of an extradition agreement to which the Republic is a party, the provision of this Act prevails to the extent of that inconsistency.

Extradition partners

15. (1) All foreign States—

- (a) that have ratified a Convention or similar multilateral agreement referred to in the definition of "extradition agreement";
- (b) with which the Republic has concluded a bilateral agreement, providing for the extradition of persons; or are extradition partners.

(c) every foreign State designated under a prior law, as well as the date of entry into force of that designation.

(3) The Minister must amend the notice referred to in subsection (2), within 60 days after —

- (a) the ratification of, or accession to, a Convention or similar multilateral agreement, by adding that Convention or similar multilateral agreement, as well as the date of entry into force of that Convention or agreement;
- (b) the date of conclusion or entry into force of a bilateral agreement providing for the extradition of persons, by adding the foreign State with which the agreement was concluded, as well as the date of entry into force of that agreement; and
- (c) the designation of a foreign State, by adding the foreign State designated, as well as the date of entry into force of the designation.

(4) The Minister must amend the notice referred to in subsection (2), within 60 days after—

- (a) the obligations of the Republic in terms of a Convention or similar multilateral agreement or bilateral agreement providing for the extradition of persons, have ceased; or
- (b) the obligations of the Republic in respect of a designated State have ceased, by removing the Convention or similar multilateral or bilateral agreement or designation of the foreign State from the notice.

Presidential consent

16. (1) The President may, subject to the provisions of the Constitution, in writing, give consent that a request by an appropriate authority of an unlisted foreign State for the extradition of a person accused or convicted of an extraditable offence, be considered in terms of this Act.

(2) The Minister must, after the President has so consented, deal with the request for extradition in terms of section 24.

CHAPTER 4

EXTRADITION TO REPUBLIC

Person extradited to Republic not to be detained or tried for certain offences

17. (1) Subject to subsection (2), a person who is to be extradited to the Republic by a foreign State may not, until that person has been returned or has had an opportunity of returning to the jurisdiction of that foreign State, be detained or tried in the Republic for an offence committed prior to the extradition of that person other than the offence in respect of which extradition is sought, unless that foreign State or that person, in writing, consents to the detention or trial.

(2) The person referred to in subsection (1) must, within 45 days after having been offered the opportunity of returning or within the period indicated in an extradition agreement, return to the jurisdiction of the foreign State in question.

Extradited person may be returned to foreign State

18. The Minister may, at the written request of a person, return such person to the extradition partner or unlisted foreign State which extradited the person to the Republic, if—

Removal of person extradited

60. A person ordered to be extradited under this Act may be removed from the Republic in the custody of the person authorised by the requesting State to receive the extradited person and if the person escapes while being so removed, the person may be arrested without a warrant of arrest.

Escape from custody

61. A person who—

- (a) while being so removed, escapes or attempts to escape from custody; or
- (b) frees or attempts to free from custody a person being so removed, is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction to imprisonment for a period not exceeding five years.

CHAPTER 6

SURRENDER OF PERSON TO ENTITY

Definitions

62. For the purposes of this Chapter, unless the context indicates otherwise—

"competent authority" means an authority responsible for the administration of justice, prosecutions or international liaison on behalf of an entity;

"entity" means an international organisation, international tribunal, international court, or similar body which has jurisdiction in respect of an international crime, excluding the International Criminal Court; and

"surrender" means the handing over of a person who is sought by an entity for criminal prosecution for a crime or for the imposition or enforcement of a sentence in respect of such crime and "surrendering" has a corresponding meaning.

Application of Chapter

63. (1) A person accused or convicted of a crime over which an entity has jurisdiction may, subject to this Act, or any other law of the Republic, on request, be surrendered by the Republic to the entity whether or not—

(a) the crime was committed before the date of—

- (i) the commencement of this Act; or
- (ii) the establishment of an entity; and

(b) a court in the Republic has jurisdiction to try that person for that offence.

(2) A person may be surrendered by the Republic in accordance with this Act, on the request of a competent authority for the purpose of prosecuting the person, imposing a sentence on the person, or enforcing a sentence imposed on the person in respect of a crime.

(3) In addition to the surrender of a person, property that is required as evidence or was acquired as a result of the commission of the crime in question may, at the request of a competent authority, be transferred in accordance with this Act.

(4) The Criminal Procedure Act applies, with the necessary changes as may be required by the context, except in so far as this Chapter provides for amended, additional or different provisions or procedures.

No grounds for refusal of extradition to entity

64. Despite any other law to the contrary, including customary and conventional international law, the fact that a person being a member of a security service or armed force, was under a legal obligation to obey an unlawful order of a government or superior, does not constitute a ground for refusing the surrender of that person for an alleged crime to an entity.

Request for surrender and transfer of property

65. (1) Section 20(1), (2), (3), (7), (8) and (9) applies, with the necessary changes as may be required by the context, to a request by a competent authority for the surrender of a person to an entity.

(2) Where the surrender of a person is requested for the purposes of prosecuting a crime, the request must—

- (a) identify the crime with which the person is charged, including the particulars surrounding the commission of the crime, such as the date, time and place where the crime was committed;
- (b) identify the territory where the commission of the crime took place;
- (c) be supported by the original warrant of arrest or similar order issued by the entity or an authenticated or certified copy of the warrant or order; and
- (d) make provision for any other particulars or information as may be prescribed by the Minister.

(3) Where the surrender of a person is requested for the purposes of imposing a sentence, the request must—

- (a) identify the crime in respect of which the person is to be sentenced, including particulars surrounding the commission of the crime, such as the date, time and place where the crime was committed;
- (b) identify the territory where the commission of the crime took place;
- (c) be supported by the original record of conviction which reflects the charge and conviction, or similar order issued by the entity, or an authenticated or certified copy of the record of conviction or order; and
- (d) make provision for any other particulars or information as may be prescribed by the Minister.

(4) Where the surrender of a person is requested for the purposes of serving the remaining term of a sentence, the request must—

- (a) identify the crime in respect of which the person is to serve the remaining term of a sentence, contain particulars surrounding the commission of the crime, such as the date, time and place where the crime was committed;
- (b) identify the territory where the commission of the crime took place;
- (c) be supported by the original record of conviction which reflects the charge and conviction and sentence or similar order issued by the entity, or an authenticated or certified copy of the record of conviction or order;
- (d) state the length of the remaining term of the sentence to be served; and
- (e) make provision for any other particulars or information as may be prescribed by the Minister.

(5) A request for the surrender of a person by a competent authority may contain or be accompanied by a request for the transfer of any property that—

- (a) is required as evidence; or

(b) was acquired as a result of the commission of the crime in question.

(6) Sections 21 and 23 apply, with the necessary changes as may be required by the context, to a request by a competent authority for the transfer of property that is required as evidence or was acquired as a result of the commission of the crime in question.

Concurrent requests for extradition and surrender

66. (1) A request by the International Criminal Court for the surrender of a person to that Court takes preference over a request for surrender in terms of this Chapter of the same person.

(2) A request in terms of this Chapter by an entity for the surrender of a person to that entity takes preference over a request in terms of Chapter 5 of this Act for the extradition of the same person.

Notice to proceed by Minister

67. (1) On receipt of a request for the surrender of a person by an entity, the Minister may issue a notice to proceed if the Minister, on perusal of the documents submitted in terms of section 65, is satisfied that the request—

- (a) is a request by a competent authority of the entity;
- (b) is for a crime in respect of which the entity has jurisdiction;
- (c) contains sufficient information regarding the identity and liability of the person to be surrendered or of the property to be transferred, if applicable; and
- (d) is otherwise made in accordance with this Act.

(2) Section 24(3), (5), (6) and (7) applies, with the necessary changes as may be required by the context, to a notice to proceed issued in terms of subsection (1).

(3) A notice to proceed must be in the prescribed form.

Warrant of arrest and detention

68. Sections 25(1), (3) and (4) and 26 apply, with the necessary changes as may be required by the context, to the issuing of a warrant of arrest and detention of a person for the purposes of surrendering the person to an entity.

Provisional arrest of person to be surrendered

69. (1) A request for the provisional arrest of a person may only be considered if—

- (a) the request emanates from an entity;
- (b) a request for the surrender of the person in question is imminent;
- (c) the crime in respect of which the provisional arrest is to be effected, falls within the jurisdiction, including the territorial jurisdiction, of the entity; and
- (d) the request was made by a competent authority to an appropriate authority in the Republic in writing or by any other means constituting a record in writing.

(2) Section 27(3) applies, with the necessary changes as may be required by the context, to a request for the provisional arrest of a person in terms of subsection (1).

(3) A request for the provisional arrest of a person must—

- (a) state—
- (i) that there is a conviction in respect of the person referred to in subsection (1), that a sentence has been imposed on the person in question, or that a warrant of arrest or detention order, or an order having a similar effect, as the case may be, exists in respect of that person;
 - (ii) that the competent authority intends making a request for the surrender of the person in question;
 - (iii) that the crime in respect of which the person is to be arrested is one over which the entity in question has jurisdiction; and
 - (iv) the crime in respect of which the surrender will be requested, including the date and place of commission of the crime; and
- (b) contain, as far as possible, a description of the person whose arrest is sought.

Consideration by magistrate of request for provisional arrest and subsequent proceedings

70. (1) A magistrate may, on application by an appropriate authority in the Republic, issue a warrant for the provisional arrest of a person, if the magistrate is satisfied that—

- (a) the request complies with the provisions of section 69;
- (b) the person to be arrested is ordinarily resident in the Republic, is in the Republic or is on the way to the Republic; and
- (c) the request has been made on grounds of urgency.

(2) A magistrate who refuses to issue a warrant for the provisional arrest of a person must, within five days after the refusal, give notice, in writing, to the Minister of the refusal.

(3) The notice to the Minister, referred to in subsection (2), must be in the prescribed form.

(4) A provisional warrant of arrest issued under this section must be executed in the same manner as a warrant of arrest issued under section 25(1).

(5) Sections 28(5) and 29 apply, with the necessary changes as may be required by the context, to a provisional warrant of arrest issued in terms of subsection (1).

(6) Sections 31 and 32 apply, with the necessary changes as may be required by the context, to a consideration by a magistrate of a request for provisional arrest and subsequent proceedings held in terms of this Chapter.

Enquiry relating to surrender and subsequent proceedings

71. (1) Sections 37, 38, 39, 40(1), 41 to 51, 52 (a), (b), (d) and (e) and 53 to 61 apply, with the necessary changes as may be required by the context, to an enquiry relating to surrender and subsequent proceedings held in terms of this Chapter.

(2) In the application of the sections referred to in subsection (1), the requirement in the sections that the offence in question must be an extraditable offence referred to in section 3, must be read as a requirement that the crime in question falls within the jurisdiction of the entity.

CHAPTER 7

(4) A magistrate who has been designated in terms of subsection (1), may conduct an enquiry in any court which falls within the jurisdiction of the head of the administrative region who designated that magistrate.

Extra-territorial jurisdiction

74. (1) (a) Despite any other law—

- (ii) a person whose extradition to a requesting State is refused as a result of the failure of that State to give an assurance that the death penalty will not be imposed for the offence for which extradition is sought, or if imposed, will not be carried out, may, if the person is found in the Republic, be tried in the Republic for the offence for which extradition was sought despite the fact that the offence was committed outside the area of jurisdiction of the courts in the Republic.

(b) The court in whose area of jurisdiction a person referred to in paragraph (a) is found, has jurisdiction to try that person for the offence for which extradition was sought.

(c) A person referred to in paragraph (a) may only be tried upon the written instruction of the National Director of Public Prosecutions.

(3) The President may, for the purposes of a prosecution in terms of this section, enter into an agreement, as envisaged in section 27(1) of the International Co-operation in Criminal Matters Act, 1996 (Act No. 75 of 1996), with the requesting State, relating to the investigation and prosecution of criminal matters.

Transfer of extradition and surrender proceedings

75. (1) A magistrate may, subject to subsection (2), on application by a Director of Public Prosecutions and if the interests of justice, expediency or state security so require, order that proceedings in terms of this Act be transferred to—

(a) another specified court for a district in the Republic; or

(b) a specific magistrate of another court for a district in the Republic, and that the person whose extradition or surrender is sought must appear before a magistrate or specific magistrate of that area.

(2) Proceedings in terms of this Act may not be transferred if the designated magistrate has commenced with the enquiry relating to the determination whether the person is liable to be extradited to a requesting State or surrendered to an entity.

(2) A police official may, without a search warrant, search any container or premises for the purpose of seizing any article referred to in subsection (1)—

- (a) if the person in question consents to the search for, and the seizure of, the article in question, or if the person who may consent to the search of the container or premises, consents to the search and the seizure of the article in question; or

- (b) if the police official, on reasonable grounds, believes—
- (i) that a search warrant will be issued to him or her under subsection (3) if he or she applies for such warrant; and
 - (ii) that the delay in obtaining such warrant would defeat the object of the search.

(3) A magistrate may, at any time during proceedings in terms of this Act, issue a search warrant, if it appears to the magistrate, from information on oath, that there are reasonable grounds for believing that a property referred to in subsection (1), is in the possession or under the control of, or upon, any person or upon or at any premises in the Republic.

(4) A search warrant issued under subsection (3)—

- (a) must require a police official to seize the property in question and must, to that end, authorise the police official to search any person identified in the warrant, or to enter and search any premises identified in the warrant and to search any person found on, or at, those premises;
- (b) must be executed by day, unless the magistrate issuing the warrant, in writing, authorises the execution of the warrant by night; and

(1) A person entering and passing through the Republic in custody by virtue of a warrant or order lawfully issued in a foreign State or by an entity, is, during that person's passage through the Republic, deemed to be in lawful custody if the Minister has, at the request of the foreign State or the entity by which the warrant or order was issued, authorised such passage in custody.

(2) A certificate by the Minister that such a warrant or order was lawfully issued, will be conclusive proof of that fact.

MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE EXTRADITION BILL

1. PURPOSE OF BILL

1.1 The Extradition Bill, 2022 (“Bill”) makes provision for the renewed consideration of the subject matter of extradition and is necessary, for the following reasons:

- (a) The Extradition Act, 1962 (Act 67 of 1962) (“the Act”) is outdated and not consistent with modern extradition trends;
- (b) The Act does not provide for an adequate legislative framework to enable South Africa to carry out its international obligations;
- (c) Some of the procedures provided for in the Act cause delays in the finalisation of extradition requests;
- (d) It does not cover procedures which need to be followed in practice;
- (e) There is uncertainty in respect of some of the provisions in the Act regarding the roles and responsibilities of the functionaries involved in the extradition process;
- (f) Section 5(1)(a) of the Act has been declared unconstitutional by the Constitutional Court.

2. OBJECTS OF BILL

2.1 To make provision for modern extradition trends.

2.2 To ensure that the provisions of the Bill meet the international law obligations of the Republic of South Africa (“Republic”) and are consistent with the Constitution and Constitutional Court judgments.

2.3 To put in place procedures and mechanisms to simplify and expedite extradition requests.

2.4 To ensure that the legislative framework covers all necessary practical arrangements.

2.5 To clarify some of the roles and responsibilities of the functionaries involved in the extradition proceedings.

3. SUMMARY OF BILL

3.1 Discussion of Bill: General aspects:

3.1.1 The Bill is divided into 7 Chapters which are discussed hereunder. The Bill is much more comprehensive than the Act. The Bill provides in a separate Chapter for the arrest, detention and surrender of persons to International Tribunals having jurisdiction in respect of international crimes (such as war crimes, crimes against humanity and genocide). The issue of rendering of other forms of legal assistance to these Tribunals, such as the gathering of evidence, is not dealt with in the Bill because the view is held that the Bill should only deal with the handing over of persons and the transfer of property to International Tribunals and that provision for legal assistance to International Tribunals should rather be made in the International Co-operation in Criminal Matters Act, 1996 (Act 75 of 1996) ("the ICCM Act") which deals with matters of this nature in relation to foreign States. A separate draft Amendment Bill providing for the rendering of legal assistance to International Tribunals has been prepared and will be promoted together with the Bill.

3.1.2 In preparing the Bill, consideration was given to the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996 ("the Constitution"), the laws of other jurisdictions regulating extradition, the international obligations of the Republic as set out in some of the bilateral and multilateral agreements and the ICCM Act and the Implementation of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court Act, 2002 (Act No. 27 of 2002) (“Implementation Act”).

3.2 CLAUSE BY CLAUSE ANALYSIS

3.2.1 Provision has been made in the Bill for a preamble.

3.2.2 Chapter 1: Introductory Provisions

- (a) Clause 1 of the Bill contains the definitions. The only definition which requires discussion is the following: For purposes of clause 33 of the Bill, which provides for the arrest of a person on the basis of written information, including a Red Notice, in possession of the International Criminal Police Organisation (INTERPOL), a definition of “Red Notice” has been included.
- (b) The application of the Act is dealt with in Clause 2 of the Bill which, among others, provides that a person may be extradited if the offence concerned was committed before the commencement of the Act, before the conclusion of an extradition agreement and before the designation of any State. This clause seeks to make it clear that a person may be extradited for prosecution purposes, for sentencing or for the enforcement of a sentence and for the search, seizure and transfer of property. (This clause is consistent with similar provisions of other jurisdictions and section 3(1) of the Act.) Clause 2 of the Bill also regulates the relationship between the Act and the Criminal Procedure Act, 1977 (Act 51 of 1977) (“the CPA”). The current Act does not deal with this aspect and hence, the need was identified to make provision for this aspect in the Bill.

3.2.3 Chapter 2: General Principles

- (a) Clause 3 of the Bill contains a description of an extraditable offence. The description is almost the same as the definition of “extraditable offence” in the Act except that the Act provides that the period of imprisonment to be imposed for the offence must be at least six months before a person can be extradited whereas this clause requires a 12 month period. It is deemed necessary to increase the period, having regard to the lengthy period of time required to finalise an extradition request, which is, from the date of arrest of the person sought, until the date of handing over of a person. The period has been determined by taking into account the periods provided for in extradition treaties.
- (b) Clause 4 of the Bill deals with the enforcement of a sentence. The remaining period of imprisonment to be served before a person can be extradited in terms of this clause, has been determined at 4 months. This period is consistent with the European Convention on Extradition.
- (c) Clause 5 of the Bill deals with jurisdiction.
- (i) The Act requires that a person may only be extradited in the event of an extraditable offence being committed within the jurisdiction of either the Republic or the requesting State.
- (ii) Clause 5 of the Bill does not contain this requirement. Extradition in terms of this clause is allowed even if the offence has not been committed within the jurisdiction of the requesting State. (However, see paragraph (iv) below). This is because it appears that there is a tendency towards the granting of extra-territorial or, even universal, jurisdiction to courts, in particular in respect of serious crimes such as corruption and international crimes.

- (iii) Clause 5 will ensure compliance with the international obligations of the Republic, amongst others, in terms of the extradition agreements (for example Article 7 of the European Convention on Extradition and article 5 of the treaty between the Republic and Bangladesh) and the Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in International Business Transactions (the Combating of Bribery Convention) which provides in Article 4, for jurisdiction beyond the territory of the Parties. Clause 5 of the Bill is consistent with the Canadian Model.
- (iv) Despite the above, in terms of Clause 5 of the Bill, an extradition agreement may provide for the reciprocal handing over of a person, only if the offence for which the person is sought, has been committed within the jurisdiction of the extradition partner.
- (d) Clause 6 of the Bill sets out the offences in respect of which extradition is precluded, such as military and political offences. It also indicates which offences will not be regarded as political offences. This provision is consistent with the Act and the domestic laws of some other jurisdictions.
- (e) Clause 7 of the Bill makes it clear that a person will not be extradited if the person is prosecuted on account of his or her race, religion, nationality, ethnic origin, political opinion, sex, status, sexual orientation and gender identity. The Act contains a similar clause. Similar provisions are found in the extradition laws of other jurisdictions.

- (f) In terms of Clause 8 of the Bill, a person will not be extradited if he or she has become immune from prosecution due to pardon, lapse of time or amnesty. The Act does not contain a provision in this regard. This provision is consistent with current international best practices.
- (g) Clause 9 of the Bill gives effect to the constitutional principle that a person may not be prosecuted if he or she has previously been acquitted or convicted on the same facts. The Act does not contain a provision in this regard. This provision is based on an important and well-established legal principle which applies in respect of criminal proceedings.
- (h) Clause 10 of the Bill provides that the fact that a person was a member of a security service or armed force and acted under a legal obligation to obey an unlawful order of a government or superior, does not constitute a ground for refusing the extradition of the person to the requesting State. The Act is silent on this matter.
- (i) Clause 11 of the Bill regulates the position in respect of subsequent requests for extradition. This clause provides that the discharge of a person in terms of the Act does not preclude future proceedings against the same person unless there are grounds for believing that such proceedings would constitute an abuse of process. The Act is silent on this matter.
- (j) Clause 12 of the Bill confers an obligation on the person who carries out an arrest, to notify an arrested non-citizen of his or her right relating to communication and visits by a legal representative. The Act does not contain any provision in this regard.

3.2.4 Chapter 3: Extradition Agreement, Extradition Partner and Presidential Consent

- (a) Clause 13 of the Bill is based on section 2 of the Act. Clause 13 provides that the President may conclude extradition agreements (multilateral and bilateral agreements) with foreign States. The President may also designate foreign States which are members of the Commonwealth. (Some of them have not yet been designated.) This clause also determines when the agreements and the designations will take effect. In terms of this clause, the Minister has a duty of giving notice in the Gazette of the entry into force of any agreement or designation. In addition, clause 13 also recognises as extradition agreements, the arrangements made with foreign States by virtue of the provisions of the Extradition Acts of 1870 to 1906 of the Parliament of the United Kingdom, as applied in the Republic and which were in force in respect of the Republic immediately prior to the commencement of the Act. This aspect is regulated in section 2(4) of the Act.
- (b) Clause 14 of the Bill regulates the relationship between the Bill and extradition agreements. This clause provides that where a provision of the Act is inconsistent with a provision of an extradition agreement to which the Republic is a party, the provision of the Act will prevail to the extent of that inconsistency. The Act does not regulate this matter.
- (c) In terms of Clause 15 of the Bill, any foreign State with which the Republic has concluded an agreement and any foreign State designated by the Republic, are extradition partners. In terms of this clause, the Minister must by notice in the Gazette list the extradition partners and amend it from time to time.

- (d) In terms of Clause 16 of the Bill, the President may give consent that a request, by an appropriate authority of an unlisted foreign State, for the extradition of a person may be considered in terms of the Act, in the absence of an extradition agreement. The Act contains a similar principle in section 3(2).

3.2.5 Chapter 4: Extradition to the Republic

3.2.5.1 Any request by the Republic for extradition will mainly be regulated by the law of the requested State, hence this Chapter contains only three clauses:

- (a) Clause 17 of the Bill provides for the circumstances under which a person may be detained or tried in the Republic for an offence other than the offence in respect of which his or her extradition is sought and which was committed prior to his or her extradition. The Act contains a similar provision.
- (b) In terms of Clause 18 of the Bill, the Minister may, under certain circumstances, return a person to the requested State. The Act contains a similar provision.
- (c) In terms of Clause 19 of the Bill, a request for extradition must be transmitted to the requested State by the Minister. A request for the provisional arrest of a person sought must, in terms of this provision, be transmitted by the appropriate authority in the Republic, which is the National Prosecuting Authority (“the NPA”) or the South African Police Service (“the SAPS”), to the appropriate authority in the foreign State.

3.2.6 Chapter 5: Extradition from the Republic

- (a) This Chapter consists of eight (8) Parts, all dealing with different matters, including requests for extradition, provisional arrest, the extradition enquiry, appeals and consent to extradition.
- (b) It appears that many of the delays experienced in the finalisation of extradition matters, are caused by evidentiary problems experienced during the extradition enquiry and the hearing of appeals do not always receive priority.
- (c) Part 1: Requests for extradition
 - (i) As has already been indicated, a request for extradition can be made in respect of a prosecution, the imposition of a sentence or the enforcement of a sentence. Clause 20 of the Bill sets out the requirements for the different requests and the factors to be considered by the Minister on receipt of a request.
 - (ii) Clause 21 of the Bill regulates the situation where an extradition request is received and is accompanied by a request for the transfer of property, where it is alleged that the property is required as evidence or was acquired as a result of the commission of the offence in question. This clause indicates how the request for the transfer of the property should be dealt with. The Act is silent on this issue.
 - (iii) Clause 22 of the Bill regulates the situation where more than one request for the extradition of the same person is received from different States or from a State and the International Criminal Court as contemplated in the Implementation Act.

- (iv) In terms of Clause 23 of the Bill, all requests for extradition and the transfer of property must be in English or be accompanied by a certified translation thereof into English, unless an extradition agreement provides otherwise.
- (v) Clause 24 of the Bill mandates the Minister to issue a notice to proceed with a request for extradition if he or she is satisfied with a number of requirements. (The Act does not contain detailed information about the issuing of this notice.) This clause provides that the Minister must send the notice to the National Director of Public Prosecutions (“the NDPP”) who will, where necessary, liaise with INTERPOL, and then submit the notice to the relevant Director of Public Prosecutions (“the DPP”) who will approach the Magistrate to issue a warrant of arrest.
- (vi) Clause 25 of the Bill provides for the—
 - (aa) issuing of a warrant of arrest by a magistrate once the Minister has issued a notice to proceed and is satisfied that there is a basis for the issuing of a warrant of arrest; and
 - (bb) endorsement of a warrant of arrest by a magistrate where the warrant has been issued in a designated foreign (Commonwealth) State. A magistrate is also empowered to issue a warrant for the search and seizure of certain property together with the warrant of arrest. The endorsement of warrants of arrest will expedite the extradition process.
- (vii) In terms of Clause 26 of the Bill, a person detained under a warrant of arrest must, within 48 hours after the arrest, be brought before a magistrate who must place the matter on the court roll for an extradition enquiry. The magistrate may release the detained person on bail. Clause 26 is consistent with section 50 of the CPA. The Act provides that a detained person must be brought before a magistrate as soon as possible. The Act therefore allows for some form of flexibility but have in the past, led to unnecessary delays in bringing the person before the court.

(d) Part 2: Provisional arrest and extradition proceedings

- (i) Clause 27 of the Bill deals with a request for provisional arrest, an aspect not provided for in the Act but in many extradition agreements and treaties. In terms of clause 27, a request for provisional arrest may only be made by an extradition partner since there is, in respect of an extradition partner, already a basis underpinning reciprocity. Clause 27 also provides for the language of the request, the channels to be followed when the request is submitted and the content of the request.
- (ii) Clause 28 of the Bill grants a magistrate the power, in certain circumstances, to issue, upon request of the NPA or the SAPS, a warrant of arrest upon receipt of a request for the provisional arrest of a person. In terms of this clause, the magistrate must notify the Minister of a refusal to issue a warrant for provisional arrest so that the Minister can notify the requesting State of the refusal and the reasons therefor.
- (iii) In terms of clause 29 of the Bill, a person who has been arrested on a provisional warrant of arrest must, within 48 hours after the arrest, be brought before a magistrate who must postpone, for the purposes of holding of enquiry, the matter to a later date to obtain the formal request for extradition and a notice to proceed issued by the Minister, for the purposes of holding an enquiry. The magistrate may release the person on bail and must notify the Minister of the arrest of the person.

- (iv) The content of the notice referred to in paragraph (iii) above, is to be prescribed by regulation by the Minister in terms of clause 30 of the Bill.
 - (v) Clause 31 of the Bill deals with the powers and duties of the Minister on receipt of a notice of provisional arrest by a magistrate. In terms of this clause, the Minister may decide to discharge the person on certain grounds, including the grounds provided in Clause 53, as discussed below. This clause also obliges the Minister to inform the requesting State of the outcome of the request.
 - (vi) Clause 32 of the Bill authorises the Minister to issue a notice to proceed and a magistrate to hold an extradition enquiry where an extradition request is received, subsequent to the receipt of a request for the provisional arrest of a person.
- (e) Part 3: Extradition proceedings after arrest without warrant
- (i) Clause 33 of the Bill provides that the arrest of any person for an offence committed outside the Republic on the basis of written information (Red Notice), provided by INTERPOL, indicating that a warrant for the arrest and detention of that person has been issued in the jurisdiction of an extradition partner is considered lawful.

- (ii) Clause 34 of the Bill regulates the position where a person has been arrested without a warrant of arrest in terms of any law in the Republic for an offence committed outside the Republic, an example of which is section 40(k) of the CPA. The Act contains a similar provision. The magistrate before whom the arrested person must appear within 48 hours after the arrest, must postpone the matter to a later date to obtain the formal request for extradition and the notice, to be issued by the Minister, to proceed with an extradition enquiry. This clause also obliges the magistrate before whom the arrested person appears, to notify the Minister of the arrest of the person.
 - (iii) Clause 35 of the Bill provides that the notice to the Minister referred to in Clause 34, must be in the form prescribed by the Minister by regulation.
 - (iv) Clause 36 of the Bill sets out the powers and duties of the Minister on receipt of the notice of arrest referred to in Clauses 34 and 35. In terms of Clause 36, the Minister must, in certain circumstances, discharge the person arrested and must subsequently notify the foreign State in question of the discharge.
 - (v) Clause 37 of the Bill indicates what needs to be done after receipt of a request for the extradition of a person who was arrested without a warrant.
- (f) Part 4: Extradition enquiry
- (i) In terms of clause 38 of the Bill, a magistrate holding an extradition enquiry must proceed in the manner in which a preparatory examination is held under Chapter 20 of the CPA. (A trial in the High Court is in some cases preceded by a preparatory examination held in a magistrate's court at the request of the NPA. The purpose of a preparatory examination is to enable the court to assess whether the prosecution has a case and, if it does, whether it is a case for the High Court and that, in respect of serious charges, the accused should be informed fully of the state's case.) In terms of this clause, a magistrate must, when postponing the enquiry, postpone it for the shortest possible period. The content of Clause 38 is substantially similar to the provisions in section 9(2) of the Act.

- (ii) Clause 39 of the Bill provides that the magistrate must determine whether a person is liable to be extradited in accordance with Clauses 40 and 41.
- (iii) Clause 40 of the Bill sets out the factors to be considered by a magistrate in determining whether or not the person is liable for extradition in the case of a person sought for purposes of prosecution. These factors are not as broad as those listed in section 12(2) of the Act. Clause 40 seeks to ensure that the thresholds which apply in criminal cases are not applied in respect of extradition enquiries and to clarify the role and responsibilities between the Judiciary and the Executive in relation to extradition requests.
- (iv) Clause 41 of the Bill sets out the factors to be considered by the magistrate in determining whether or not the person is liable for extradition in the case of a person sought for the purposes of sentencing.

- (v) Clause 42 of the Bill prohibits a magistrate holding an extradition enquiry from considering any other factors than those listed in Clauses 40 and 41.
 - (vi) In terms of Clause 43 of the Bill, a magistrate may postpone the extradition enquiry, if the person sought is being prosecuted or is serving a sentence of imprisonment in the Republic, until these matters have been concluded.
 - (vii) Clause 44 of the Bill regulates evidentiary matters relating to extradition enquiries and determines which documents must be handed in to a magistrate and under what conditions. Clause 44 seeks to simplify and expedite the extradition process and to address the shortcomings in section 9 of the Act, which is in some respects unclear and does not deal adequately with the handing in of certain documents.
 - (viii) Clause 45 of the Bill deals with the order of committal or discharge to be issued by a magistrate after the conclusion of an extradition enquiry and matters relating to legal aid.
 - (ix) Clause 46 of the Bill regulates the powers of a magistrate relating to the issuing of an order in respect of property seized.
- (g) Part 5: Appeal
- (i) Section 13 of the Act provides that a person who has been found liable to be extradited by a magistrate may within 15 days after the issue of an order to this extent, appeal against such order. This provision has been retained in the Bill. This matter is dealt with in Clause 47.

- (ii) Clause 47 of the Bill provides that any person against whom an order has been issued under section 45, may appeal against such order to the provincial or local division of the High Court of South Africa having jurisdiction.
 - (iii) Clause 48 of the Bill provides for the release of the person to be extradited on bail, pending the outcome of the appeal and related matters.
 - (iv) Clause 49 of the Bill provides for an appeal by the DPP on questions of law only. This is consistent with the CPA and the same procedure is in essence retained.
 - (v) Clause 50 of the Bill indicates when a person can be handed over to the Requesting State. The handing over can only happen when all processes, including an appeal, have been concluded.
- (h) Part 6: Powers of Minister
- (i) Clause 51 of the Bill provides that the Minister may order the handing over to the requesting State of a person who has been committed to prison by order of a magistrate.
 - (ii) In terms of Clause 52 of the Bill, the Minister may refuse the handing over to the requesting State of a person in certain circumstances. This clause is based on section 11 of the Act which lists the circumstances under which the Minister may order that a person may not be surrendered.

- (iii) Clause 53 of the Bill sets out the circumstances when the Minister must refuse the handing over of a person to a requesting State. These circumstances are linked to clauses 6, 7, 8 and 9 of the Bill. Clause 53 ensures that persons are not handed over to countries where gross human rights violations are taking place and capital punishment is still executed unless satisfactorily assurances are given by these countries. The giving of assurances of this nature is a standard provision in extradition agreements.
- (iv) Clause 54 of the Bill empowers the Minister, in certain circumstances, to order the cancellation of any warrant of arrest and warrant for search and seizure.
- (v) Clause 55 of the Bill obliges the Minister to inform the requesting State of his or her decision. In the event of a refusal to hand over the person, the Minister must also give reasons for the refusal.
- (vi) In terms of Clause 56 of the Bill, the Minister may, in certain circumstances and on certain conditions, order the temporary extradition of a person to a requesting State for the purpose of prosecution. The Act does not provide for this matter. This provision is consistent with some extradition agreements.

(i) Part 7: Consent to extradition

The Act does not provide for a person to consent to his or her extradition. Since the EU Convention provides for this aspect and there is a need in practice to regulate this aspect, provision is made for this aspect in Part 7 of the Chapter. The clauses can be summarised as follows:

- (i) Clause 57 of the Bill enables the person sought to consent to his or her extradition but only if he or she is legally represented.
 - (ii) Clause 58 of the Bill regulates the effect of consent and provides that the consent is irrevocable and that the person by so consenting, waives his or her rights to an extradition enquiry. This clause is consistent with the Canadian model.
 - (iii) In terms of Clause 59 of the Bill, a magistrate is compelled to ensure that consent is given freely and voluntarily and that the person is fully aware of the effect of his or her consent. Clause 59 also confers upon the magistrate other related duties and the duty on the Minister to inform the Requesting State of the order of committal made by the magistrate.
- (j) Part 8: Extradition of person
- (i) Clause 60 of the Bill regulates the removal of the person and provides authority to, without a warrant of arrest, arrest a person who is to be extradited and who escapes from custody.
 - (ii) Clause 61 of the Bill criminalises the act of escape from custody or the rendering of assistance to escape and prescribes a penalty, a maximum prison term of five years. Section 16(2) of the Act contains similar provisions.

3.2.7 Chapter 6: Surrender of Person to Entity

3.2.7.1 This Chapter deals with all the aspects relating to the surrender of persons to international tribunals, such as the Rwanda Tribunal and the Yugoslavia Tribunal and any other international tribunal having jurisdiction in respect of international crimes. Where appropriate, the provisions of the Bill relating to extradition to a State have been made applicable to the surrender of persons to international entities.

- (a) Clause 62 of the Bill contains a definition of “entity” which means any international organisation, international tribunal, international court, or similar body which has jurisdiction in respect of an international crime, excluding International Criminal Court which is regulated by the Rome Statute Act. These concepts are widely defined.
- (b) Clause 63 of the Bill provides for the application of the Chapter and is similar to Clause 2 of the Bill.
- (c) Clause 64 of the Bill provides that the fact that a person was a member of a security service or armed force and acted under a legal obligation to obey an unlawful order of a government or superior, does not constitute a ground for refusing the extradition of the person to the Requesting State.
- (e) Clause 65 of the Bill deals with requests for the surrender of persons and the transfer of property. This clause is consistent with Clauses 20 and 21 of the Bill, which relate to requests for extradition and the transfer of property.
- (f) Clause 66 of the Bill deals with concurrent requests for extradition and surrender. In terms of this provision, a request for the surrender of a person to the International Criminal Court will take precedence over a request for the surrender of the same person to any other entity. In terms of this provision, a request for the surrender of a person to an entity will take precedence over a request for the extradition of the same person to a State.

- (g) In terms of Clause 67 of the Bill, the Minister must issue a notice to proceed if the request for the surrender of a fugitive meets certain requirements. This provision is consistent with Clause 24, which has a bearing on a request for the extradition of a person to a State.
- (h) Clause 68 of the Bill deals with a warrant of arrest and detention. Certain provisions of the Bill, dealing with these aspects in relation to a person wanted by a State, are made applicable.
- (i) In Clause 69 of the Bill provision is made for provisional arrest, in certain circumstances, of a person in respect of whom a request for surrender is to be issued by an entity. This provision is consistent with Part 2 of Chapter 5 of the Bill, which deals with a request for the provisional arrest of a person in respect of whom a request for extradition to a State is envisaged.
- (j) Clause 70 of the Bill, dealing with the consideration of a request for the provisional arrest of a person by a magistrate, empowers a magistrate to issue a warrant for the provisional arrest of a person sought by an entity and obliges the magistrate to notify the Minister of his or her decision. Appropriate provisions of the Bill, dealing with the same subject matter in relation to States, have been made applicable.
- (k) Clause 71 of the Bill deals with the enquiry relating to the surrender of a person to an entity and subsequent proceedings and provides for the incorporation, by way of reference, of the relevant corresponding provisions of the Bill, relating to extradition to States.

3.2.8 Chapter 7: General Provisions

- (a) Clause 72 of the Bill empowers a DPP to appear at any proceedings on behalf of a requesting State or entity.
- (b) Clause 73 of the Bill deals with the designation of magistrates to conduct extradition enquiries. The need has been identified to ensure that only trained magistrates deal with extradition enquiries. In terms of Clause 74 of the Bill, magistrates who have completed a training course developed by the Council of the South African Judicial Education Institute may be designated. The head of an administrative region must designate a number of the trained magistrates in his or her region to hold extradition enquiries. Pending the completion of the training courses, the head of an administrative region must, as an interim measure, designate magistrates who are deemed to be fit and proper persons, having regard to certain prescribed criteria.
- (c) Clause 74 of the Bill provides for extra-territorial jurisdiction. In the SADC Protocol provision is made that an extradition partner may refuse to hand over to a requesting State—
 - (i) a national of the requested State; or
 - (ii) a person, if the death penalty is still carried out by the requesting State and that State does not give certain assurances.

Should the handing over of the person concerned be refused on these grounds, provision is made in the above treaty that the case must be submitted to the South African authorities with a view to taking appropriate action against the person in respect of the offence for which extradition has been requested. Since South African law does not, as a general principle, provide for extra-territorial jurisdiction, provision has been made in Clause 74, for extra-territorial jurisdiction. This clause also makes provision for the entering into an agreement by the President with the foreign State in question relating to co-operation, similar to what is provided for in section 27 of the ICCM Act. The granting of extra-territorial jurisdiction must, however, be considered very carefully in view of the implications thereof, namely logistical arrangements since witnesses and exhibits from other countries will have to be transported to and from South Africa, which may be costly. Therefore, extra-territorial jurisdiction in terms of this clause is only conferred in limited circumstances and at the written instruction of the NDPP.

- (d) Clause 75 of the Bill provides for the transfer, in certain circumstances, of the extradition or surrender proceedings to another court.
- (e) Clause 76 of the Bill regulates the search and seizure of property. The Act does not contain any provision in this regard.
- (f) Clause 77 of the Bill is an empowering provision enabling the Minister to make regulations relating to a number of aspects.
- (g) Clause 78 of the Bill deals with representation and expenses. In terms of this clause, the Republic must bear all the expenses relating to any proceedings conducted in the Republic in terms of the Bill, relating to the extradition request and for the person's arrest and detention until handed over to the Requesting State and in respect of the return of a person to a foreign State referred to in Clause 17. The Act is silent on this aspect. Clause 78 is consistent with current practices. The expenses must be paid as a direct charge against the National Revenue Fund.

- (h) Clause 79 of the Bill deals with entry and passage through the Republic of a person in custody. This clause is consistent with section 21 of the Act.
- (i) In clause 80 of the Bill, the Rules Board for Courts of Law, established in terms of section 2 of the Rules Board for Courts of Law Act, 1985 (Act 107 of 1985), is obliged to make rules of procedure, providing for the expeditious finalisation of appeals.
- (j) Provision is made in Clause 81 of the Bill for the repeal of certain laws reflected in the Schedule to the Bill.
- (k) In Clause 82 of the Bill provision is made for transitional arrangements.
- (l) Clause 83 of the Bill makes provision for the short title and commencement.
